MONTANA--HACKENSCHMIDT BOUT ON TONIGHT

Bids on $1,250,000 North Brand Theatre to Be Asked

Our City comment & discussion by THOMAS D. WATSON

Uncle Sam Will Pull No More Chestnuts Out of Europe's War Fire

ACCORDING to European dispatches, another war is looming on the horizon. This time the opposing parties are Italy and Greece. If this war becomes a reality, there is a liability of the Balkan powder magazine being ignited. The League of Nations has not been able to bring the foreign nations to a realization of the futility of war.

There is one thing that is quite certain—no matter if the foreign nations do jump at each others' throats, the American people will not permit the dragging of this country into another conflict.

* * *

THE experience gained in the world war was sufficient to show us that the sacrifice this nation made in life and money did little good towards "saving the world for democracy."

About all we proved to them was that "we were not too proud to fight," and that we could fight after we got into the fray.

* * *

AMERICA went into the last war feeling that it was her duty to join hands with the allies. If another war should break out she will be urged to join hands with the warring nations, but we do not think Uncle Sam will make any effort to again pull the chestnuts out of the fire for nations that have shown no appreciation of what we have already done, or who profited any by the experience other than in a financial way, by our sacrifice.

* * *

THE men who went overseas arrived there brim full of sentiment, but the rubbing of shoulders with our allies soon brought them to realization, and it was not long until they learned that war leaves no room for sentiment.

* * *

IF THIS country ever owed a debt of gratitude to any foreign nation the account has been more than balanced, and in the future we will do well to paddle our own canoe.

* * *

WE SHOULD refuse to loan any money to a foreign nation for war purposes. This would go a long ways toward a speedy end to a war, for wars take an immense amount of money to keep going, and most of the foreign nations have none to waste.

* * *

THE American ex-service man will also have a great deal to say before this country gets into any foreign war, unless it is forced upon us. The nation still has a debt to pay to them.

* * *

MANY of their buddies who survived the actual conflict have since died on account of lack of attention after their return home. The treatment of the ex-soldier has been a blot on the nation's name. These men willingly offered to make the supreme sacrifice, and were lauded to the skies while the war was on, but were soon forgotten after the armistice.

BUSINESS WOMEN TO MEET TUESDAY

Officers and chairmen of committees constituting the cabinet of the Business and Professional Women's club will meet Tuesday night for their regular monthly session in the rooms of the Glendale Commercial college on the second floor at 224 South Brand.

As important matters concerning plans for the month are to be discussed, it is hoped every member will be present.

WORK STARTS WITHIN NEXT THIRTY DAYS

Plans to Be Completed by Architects Within Few Days

CALL CONTRACTORS

No Delay in Construction Anticipated in Next Step Forward

Work on the new $1,250,000 theatre building on Brand between Wilson and California, will start within 30 days, according to an announcement made by Dr. Jessie A. Russell this morning.

Plans for this building have been completed. Within a day or so the architects, Messrs. Lindley and Selkirk, will advertise for bids. It is expected that at least 15 prominent builders will put in bids for this building, and that these will be received within two weeks from this time.

After the bids have been received, the work of selecting the lowest responsible man will take place, after which but a few days will elapse before actual work is under way.

STRONG ADVANCED SALE FOR CANTOR CONCERT

Mrs. A. H. Montgomery Pleased With Prospects of Sponsored Event

Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, chairman of the ways and means committee of the Tuesday Afternoon club, is much pleased with the prospects for the concert she is sponsoring for the operatic tenor, Henry Cantor, to be held in the club house auditorium the evening of September 22. A strong demand for tickets is developing and she advises those who wish to attend to secure them now. They are on sale at the chamber of commerce, the Brunswick shop, 123 South Brand, and at the home of Mrs. Montgomery, 415 South Central avenue.

Mr. Cantor and his assisting artists are busy rehearsing and the concert is certain to be one of the highest class ever offered in Glendale, and one for which patrons would have to pay $2.50 to $5.00 for in Los Angeles. The price has been fixed at $1.10, including war tax.

Mr. Cantor recently sang with great success in the role of Turriddu in "Cavalera Rusticana," at Ocean Park. He is to appear next Wednesday evening at the Philharmonic auditorium in Los Angeles.

Following the concert Mr. Cantor will leave on a tour of the orient, which will keep him away for many many months. On that tour he will publicly state that his home town is Glendale, California, and will tell of its prosperity, climate and natural beauty. With the city sending out such an advocate to the far places of the world, the men and women of Glendale should come out 100 per cent strong and pack the auditorium to give their talented townsman a good send-off.

REPORTS ON CORFU ISLAND CAUSE SENSATION

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, Sept. 3.—A Central News dispatch from Athens says that the Italian occupation of Corfu has produced a feeling of stupification and intense indignation over the fact that despite the declaration of the prefect of Corfu that the Greeks would make no resistance, the Italians opened fire on the fortress housing 5,000 refugees, of whom 11 were killed.

No retaliation was offered from the island where there were no guns.

FOOTHILL FOLKS TO MEET TUESDAY

The regular monthly meeting of the Foothill Improvement association will be held Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Grand View school. Among the important subjects to be discussed will be "Lighting Districts." The need for additional crossing over the P. E. which was brought up at the last meeting will also be considered. Other matters will be presented by the secretary and it is hoped that there will be a full attendance.

DOUBLE WEDDING IS HELD

The Misses Sargeants Enter Nuptial State on Saturday Evening

EDMONDS OFFICIATES

Girl College Friends Assist at Informal Reception at Home

At 8 o'clock Saturday night, September 1, 1923, a double wedding ceremony took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Sargent, 717 North Louise street, when their daughter, Miss Katherine Sargent, became the bride of Shirley Matthews of San Francisco and daughter, Miss Eleanor Sargent became the bride of Fay Batten of Dos Palos, Calif.

Dr. W. E. Edmonds of the First Presbyterian church of Glendale read the single ring service. The ceremony took place in the living room of the Sargent residence, where the fireplace had been banked with greenery and palms and at either side of which were large bouquets of beautiful golden dahlias.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Harold Ford played a cello solo, accompanied at the piano by her sister, Mrs. Robert Bernard. They also played the wedding march from "Lohengrin" and later played a few chords from Mendelssohn's "Wedding March."

Miss Katherine Sargent had as her bridesmaid, Miss Bartlett of La Verne. She wore a peach-colored silk gown and carried a bouquet of Los Angeles roses. Mrs. Wm. Samuel Belden of Los Angeles was the matron of honor for Miss Eleanor Sargent and wore a frocks of orchid organdie over flame colored silk, and carried Los Angeles roses.

The brides were both gowned alike and wore white satin crepe with silk lace trimming, wedding veils caught with orange blossoms and carried shower bouquets of white roses.

After the wedding an informal reception was held and refreshments were served by a group of college friends, including Mrs. Louise Stafford, Miss Ruth Walton, Miss Margaret Jones, Miss Pauline Pitts, Miss Margaret Robertson, and Mrs. Karl Cowdry. The latter had the honor of cutting the bride's cake.

Golden dahlias were used as decorations throughout the house. Mr. and Mrs. Matthews will make their home in San Francisco, after their honeymoon trip and Mr. and Mrs. Batten will reside at Dos Palos, near Merced, Calif.

The brides have both been residents of Glendale for about three years and were members of the First Presbyterian church of this city. Both are graduates of Pomona college.

About fifty intimate friends and relatives were present at the ceremony.

Dr. Jessie Russell to Visit Mexico City

Dr. Jessie A. Russell, one of the prominent real estate brokers of Glendale, expects to leave next Thursday for Mexico City, where she will go on both business and pleasure. She expects to be away about three weeks.

A. F. OF L. CALL ON ALL LABOR TO MARK PASSING OF TODAY

Samuel Gompers Discusses Meaning of the Annual Twenty-four Hours Consecrated to Working People in Letter to Local Unions

The following communication on the observation of Labor Day has been received by the local trades council from President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor:

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor, at its recent meeting at headquarters, discussed at considerable length the matter of observance of Labor Day and Labor Sunday, 1923. After much deliberation and discussion, the executive council adopted the following:

"Having regard for the need of keeping constantly before the masses of our people the highest ideals of our labor movement and the requirement of our people for the complete fullness of life in all things, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor declares as follows:

"The labor movement of America demands for all of our people the full benefit of the live-giving forces of our marvelous civilization through constantly increasing wages and improvement of working conditions and through a reasonable and proper reduction in the hours of work.

"The labor movement of America demands for the wage earners, and for all who serve usefully in any capacity, a sound and just economic basis for life and freedom in the fullest meaning of those terms.

"The labor movement of America has ever had high regard for the development of the ethical and the spiritual in life, realizing the right of all humanity to partake freely of the great satisfaction that comes to enrich life as a result.

"The labor movement of America, recognizing the fact that all freedom and all higher development of life, rest upon first providing assurance of the essentials of existence, has first demanded economic justice as a basis for all other things.

"But the labor movement has always taught that the material is essential to something higher, and that the inspiration of our movement has its deepest springs in something above and beyond the material.

"The labor movement strives for economic improvement with unrelenting zeal and fidelity because economic improvement is the first fundamental requisite; but it holds out to all mankind a flaming torch lighting the way to a greater fullness of life, to complete realization of the finer and nobler aspirations of the mind and soul.

"The labor movement fixes as its goal nothing less than the complete richness of life, without limitation of any kind, the attainment of the complete human ideal, in all of its economic, ethical and spiritual implications.

"Through the inspiration of our labor movement, the Sunday preceding Labor day, which is the first Monday in September each year, has come into general nationed observance as Labor Sunday. On this day it is fitting to give thought to the aspirations of labor and to find in what way the soul of labor may give thought and expression to its longings.

"Because of the aims and aspirations here set forth, we hold it fitting that all churches draw close to their altars the soul of Labor on the coming Labor Sunday, and that the men and women of labor everywhere make special effort to cooperate with the churches and to secure the cooperation of the churches with them, in order that there may be in the churches everywhere on that day a great unison of expression in behalf of a higher, nobler life for the masses of our people; and in order that there may be everywhere a consecration to the cause of human betterment, particularly in those things that lead to ethical and spiritual growth—in those things that give flower and fruit to the great idealism of our labor movement, the embodiment and the expression of the idealism of our people.

"May Labor Sunday each year bring home to the masses of our people the great good that humanity may yet achieve, the lofty heights to which it may climb, the inspiration and enrichment to be found in the great American labor movement which is the hope of the millions who toil.

"We ask also that Labor Day, the great holiday of the toiling masses, dedicated to them and their cause, be ennobled and enriched by an expression of the same spirit, the same high idealism and purpose, the same uplifting, inspiring search for the fullness of life and the same determination to achieve triumph over all ills and wrongs through our great movement in its ethical and spiritual aspects, as well as through its purely economic operations."

It is urged and hoped that on Labor Sunday, that is the Sunday preceding the first Monday in September, Labor Day, that arrangements will be made by the Central Labor unions and State Federations of Labor in the observance of Labor Sunday to have a good, experienced reader deliver the above declaration to the audience, and at the same time request the audience to pledge themselves to the declarations made therein.

It is urged that each Central Labor union and each State Federation of Labor, if they have not already done so, will begin now to make plans and preparations for the observance of Labor Sunday and Labor Day, and that the greatest possible prominence and emphasis will be placed upon the declarations of the executive council as above set forth.

Trusting that you will advise me in regard to the above, at your earliest convenience, and with best wishes, I am,

Fraternally yours,
SAMUEL GOMPERS,
President American Federation of Labor.

NET TOURNEY TO OPEN SECOND ROUND

Begins Tuesday Under Community Service at Hi

Beginning with Tuesday, the second round of the junior tennis tournament of Glendale community service will be played, when the following winners of the first round will meet: Donald Smith vs. Howard Wimmers; H. Smith vs. John Simpson; Robert Stanford vs. Lee Osborn, and L. A. White vs. Jack Sturgess.

There were ten entries among the boys who played the round robbin. To date, Frank Howe has made 70 out of a possible 90 points; Frank Arnold has made 69 out of a possible 90; Melvin Walker stands next, with a chance of beating the others, as he has not played all.

Normal Hayhurst, high school playground director, announces a baseball game to be held at 2:30 o'clock on the high school grounds Saturday afternoon, when two teams from the Los Angeles Santa Fe office will meet.

The tennis committee, of which William Bode is chairman, will announce the standing in the senior tournament following the committee meeting tonight.

Playgrounds at the various schools throughout the city, including the high school, are closed over Labor day.

Total attendance for the three playgrounds for the month of August was 4,647. The playgrounds were open 26 days, making an average daily attendance of 178. Miss Sattuck of the high school playground completed the summer playground work last week. The other playgrounds will remain open this week.

GLENDALE MAINS ARE BEING LAID

Long Awaited Improvement Actually Starts on Thoroughfare

PAVING TO FOLLOW

Improvement work on Glendale avenue, which the city as a whole has been looking forward to for months, has actually started. This consists of the laying of mains by the Southern California Gas company. The southern terminus of this work is Cerritos avenue. From this point the company is working north, the intention being to continue with the mains to the intersection of Glendale avenue with Verdugo, to which point the improvement work will extend. The work of laying the mains by the gas company will consume about ten days.

Peter Ferry, who was awarded the contract for the improvement of Glendale avenue with four inches of asphaltic concrete and one and a half inches of National top wearing surface, states that he will begin the work of grading the street within a few days after the operations of the gas company on that thoroughfare are completed. At this time Mr. Ferry is working night and day in the locating of his asphaltic plant where the National material will be manufactured.

"When I start work on this street," said Mr. Ferry this morning, "I expect to rush the job to completion. This is a big job, but I will put a force of men on that will be able to take care of the material as rapidly as I am able to deliver it."

Mr. Ferry is at this time putting the finishing touches on three other Glendale streets—Ruberta street, Granada street and Mariposa court.

REV. CHRISMAN SPEAKS ON ENOCH

The sermon theme of Rev. C. H. Chrisman at the Gospel Tabernacle on Sunday morning was: "And Enoch Walked with God."

The speaker dwelt upon the fact that Enoch was one of two who went into the presence of God without dying, the other being Elijah.

"In this," said he, "he was the type of all who will be translated at the second coming of Christ. Our preparation should be for translation.

"In the first place, Enoch was acquainted with God.

"Second, he had fellowship with God."

"Third, he pleased God.

"Fourth, he had faith in God.

"He was not found because God took him. It is evident that he was sought."

The preacher then drew attention to the lessons to be learned from the life of Enoch.

SORROW COMES TO THE TINNINGS

Grief has come to Mrs. Louis Tinning in the death of her mother, Mrs. Frances A. Gray, who passed away at her home in Whittier on Friday, following a long illness. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. C. E. Hanna, pastor of the Presbyterian church of that city. Mrs. Gray is survived by several children: Charles and William Gray of Whittier, James Gray of Bellflower, Mrs. J. G. Reed of San Diego, and Mrs. Louis Tinning of Glendale.

FRANKLINS TO MARK GOLDEN WEDDING

Anniversary Falls on Sunday; Celebration on Tuesday

While it was just fifty years ago September 2 that the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Franklin, of 246 North Central avenue, took place at Richmond, Mo., as this date falls on Sunday this year, the golden wedding celebration will be held on Tuesday evening, September 4, 1923. Mr. and Mrs. Franklin will entertain the members of their immediate family, all of whom are in Glendale for the occasion, with a 6 o'clock dinner party at the Egyptian Village cafe, and from 8 to 10 p. m. will hold an informal reception at their home, when they will be pleased to greet their friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin were married on September 2, 1873, at Richmond, Mo. Mr. Franklin at that time was employed as ticket agent for the Wabash railroad at St. Charles, Mo., having been previously engaged as railroad station agent at Richmond. He later studied law at Richmond and was admitted to the bar there in 1874. Mr. Franklin practiced law at Macon, Ill., and was city attorney for three years, later going to Kansas. He was elected county attorney there and commenced the first prosecution under the Kansas prohibitory law. At Russell, Kan., he served for five years as a member of the board of regents of the state normal school.

Mr. Franklin has indeed had a most interesting and active career. He was appointed to office in Washington, D. C., by President Harrison, and was at that time deputy second auditor of the treasury, now called auditor for the war department, where he served for four years. Upon the expiration of his term of office at Washington, Mr. Franklin returned to Illinois and located at Lacon, Marshall county, and served for eight years as state's attorney. After a fifteen years' residence at Lacon, the Franklins moved to Lawton, Okla. Here Mr. Franklin was president of the board of education for four years. In 1910 he was the Republican nominee for Congress in that district.

In March, 1917, the Franklins moved to Glendale and have been residing at 246 North Central avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin have six children, all of whom are in Glendale to assist in the golden wedding celebration of their parents, including Mrs. Mabel Franklin Ocker of 246 North Central avenue; Blake Franklin of 317 West Lexington drive; Wirt Franklin of Ardmore, Okla.; Mrs. Charles F. Robbins of Glenora, N. Y.; Mrs. Frank M. Head of Ardmore, Okla., and Harry Franklin of Ardmore, Okla.

The grandchildren include Isabel, John and Josephine Franklin, children of Blake Franklin; Chester and Priscilla Franklin, children of Wirt Franklin; Charles Franklin Robbins, Nancy Blake Head, Mary Wirt Head and Richard Franklin Head.

HARTLEY SHAW IS SEATED AS JUDGE

Judge Hartley Shaw of this city went to Los Angeles this morning to take the oath of office before Clerk Lampton as judge of the superior court. He will begin presiding Tuesday morning in department 27, where psychopathic and default divorce cases will come under his jurisdiction. It is not the class of work that appeals to him, but all the judges have to take their turn at it.

GOMPERS PLEDGES SUPPORT TO MINERS

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Acting on instructions given him by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor at its meeting here today, Samuel Gompers, president of the federation, telegraphed John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, pledging the "fullest support" of the federation to the miners in their negotiations with anthracite operators.

HOLLYWOOD GLENDALE MAT EVENT

Champions of the Motion Picture Arena, Clash at Press Building

OTHER BOUTS SLATED

Gladiators to Draw Big Out of Town Following to City

Clear the deck for action.

Make way for the two big motion picture wrestling antagonists. Stand back for the two leading wrestlers of the west who will fight it out on the mat in the new Glendale Press hall at 333 North Brand, in the boxing and wrestling show that will begin promptly at 8 o'clock tonight, Labor day.

The bout between John Hackensmidt, the Glendale pride, usually called "Hack" for short, and "Bull" Montana of Los Angeles, is attracting the attention of all Southern California. Sporting fans throughout this section of the country will be on hand to see these gladiators pit their muscle and brains against each other.

Wrestling fans in Glendale know what "Hack" can do. Many of them have seen this wonderful wrestler in action and they believe he is second to none in this section of the country. He is a quiet unpretentious fellow, who does his "bragging" in the ring in the form of action. By his sportsmanlike qualities he has won the hearts of those hereabouts who appreciate clean sport.

"Bull" has a reputation for being a "tough nut." During his career as a wrestler he has tackled and beaten a whole lot of the top-notchers. He has never been seen in action in Glendale, and for this reason as well as on account of his reputation as a wrestler, many local fans will attend the "show" tonight.

The rivalry in the motion picture business between these two wrestlers is another feature that would tend to assure a real bout. For a long time "Bull" was the only prominent wrestler in pictures, and he gloried in his monopoly. Then came "Hack." Without a herald to announce his entrance Johnnie started his work in the movies. It was not long, however, before Hack's "arrival" became known, and immediately the jealous streak began to manifest itself. Shots were fired back and forth, the result of these being the arranging of the wrestling bout that will take place tonight.

A feature that will be of interest to many Glendalians is the fact that at tonight's fray there will probably be a large number of movie stars. Bull is a particular friend of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, the latter being generally known as Mary Pickford. Wherever Bull has appeared in the past these two movie stars have been present, and it is very probable that they will be on hand when the bell rings tonight.

And what is more, these popular movie artists will probably bring with them a whole crowd of motion picture celebrities of both sexes. From present indications, this event promises to be a display of motion picture stars in addition to a muscular encounter.

The wrestling bout which will be the main event will be supported by three four-round boxing bouts, each of which promises to be a "cizzler." The way those pillows will be thrown around will be well worth seeing, and these events in themselves promise to be well worth the price of admission.

Johnnie Meyers, the Glendale fireman, who has a long list of victories to his credit, will exchange mits with the Arizona Wildcat of Burbank, who is also a gloveslinger of unusual ability. So far as interest is concerned, this bout is proving almost as popular as the main event.

Two other boxing bouts will be held. Young Woodsley will settle his argument with Freddie Flagg, while Jack Carr and Young Joe Rivers will throw the feather cushions for 12 minutes.

The program will be given under the auspices of the Glendale post No. 127 of the American Legion. Sergeant Herns of the Glendale police force will referee the wrestling bout, while the boxing bouts will be taken care of by "Chick" Watston. Capt. W. A. Loving, also of the local police force, will be timekeeper.

'LEGALLY DEAD' TOMORROW AT T. D. & L.

Many motion picture plots and fiction stories have been built on happenings in the day's news. Let a big murder or big event of nation-wide importance occur, and magazine editors know they will read the story of it in manuscripts as well as in the daily newspapers.

But here is the story of a film play produced in secret lest its sensational idea be "copped" by some other producing company, but which, when completed, is multiplied in value by a sudden trend in the day's news.

"Legally Dead," the Universal attraction at the T. D. & L. theatre on Tuesday, one day only, was written by Charles Furthmann around an idea of great interest to all people who live and breathe and expect to die in the usual manner. It tells the story of science's newest wonder—adrenalin, the salt from animal glands which today is bringing dead people back to life—not quite the usual thing.

But when Mr. Furthmann wrote "Legally Dead," the news of adrenalin had not yet leaked out. That was three years ago. Even a few weeks ago, when Universal, after some producers had consistently laughed at the idea of "photographing dreams," put the story into production, the adrenalin phenomenon had not yet assumed any position in the daily news.

Mrs. J. K. Wheeler of Kenosha, Wis., who has been spending the past six weeks as the guest of her sister, Mrs. H. R. Boyer of 125 West Milford street, left last week on the return trip. She stopped en route at San Francisco.

'COMMON LAW' HAS CLEVER CAST

Hobart Bosworth, who had a part in "The Common Law," the popular picture now playing at the Gateway theatre, is a direct descendant of John Alden and Priscilla Mullins on his father's side, and of the old Dutch settlers of Manhattan on his mother's. From 12 to 15 years of age he was at sea in whaling ships in the Arctic. After this he went on the stage with the McKee-Rankin stock company at John McCollough's old California theatre. At the age of 20 he played "Macbeth,' and he still maintains he was the funniest Macbeth who ever played the part. After a trip through Mexico with Herrmann, the magician, he joined the Augustin Daly stock company in New York City.

Doris May, the charming little ingenue who may be seen in "The Common Law," has a long list of screen successes to her credit, including "Boy Crazy," "Eden and Return," "The Foolish Age," "Gay and Devilish," "The Understudy" and "Up and At 'Em."

The popular matinee idol, Bryant Washburn, who has an important role in "The Common Law," was not only born in Chicago, but began both his stage career and his screen career in the Windy City. His initiation to the realm of the cinema was with the old Essanay company, and it was with them that he scored some of his most marked successes. He has made an enviable name for himself in many pictures.

Such assistance as one's friends may give is seldom satisfactory. The best way is not to require it.

TRUE PRAYER IS REV. KRINGEL'S SERMON TOPIC

"True Prayer" was the theme selected by the Rev. Henry O. Kringel for his sermon at the services of the Concordia Lutheran congregation. The theme was taken from the gospel of St. John 16, 23-30. A good audience was present. The speaker said in part:

"Our gospel treats of prayer. We poor, sinful mortals are permitted to pray, privileged to address our Creator, the great God in heaven. What an honor! Common people consider themselves highly honored when they are admitted into the presence of a mighty ruler and prince, to speak to him and ask of him some favor. But how much greater is this honor, conferred upon Christians, that we may address the Ruler of the universe and confide to Him our troubles and cares! And this is the privilege of each and every Christian.

But do Christians make the proper use of this great privilege? Satan, the old wicked foe, knows very well that true prayer is a bulwark against him, that there is very little chance for him to deceive and to seduce the praying Christian into unbelief, despair, and other shame and vice. One of his old schemes is, therefore, to throw all kinds of obstacles in the Christian's way to keep him from praying.

"Now, in our gospel we are told by our divine Lord Jesus how we may overcome those impediments which Satan places in our way, and with the aid of God continue in our prayers.

"How, therefore, can we overcome the impediments to prayer? This is done by heeding the express command of God that we should pray, and that He is pleased with our prayer, and also, that our prayer shall be heard.

"One of the main impediments by which Christians are often kept from prayer, undoubtedly, is procrastination, or putting off prayer for some future time. You know and feel that you ought to pray, but you think that you are not in the right mood to pray just then. You are not in a suitable frame of mind to address the Almighty. Your thoughts are not moving in the right channel. And so you put it off to a time when you expect to be better prepared for prayer. The appointed time comes, and lo! you are no more, or perhaps even less, qualified than before. You do not pray in the morning when you rise; you expect to be inspired with more devotion later in the day. The day passes, your mind is occupied with the things of this life, and you forget to pray.

"When night comes, you feel too tired and worn out, and make up your mind to pray the next evening. The next evening comes, and again you feel the same way, and prayer is neglected. My dear friends, who among us has not been deluded by this old trick of Satan inducing us to put off prayer, until, by the grace of God, we found that this procrastination was a delusion and a snare, aiming at the destruction of our soul?

"Let us all remember that prayer is well pleasing and acceptable in the sight of God. The Lord Jesus assured His disciples that they were God's dear children since they believed in Jesus, the Savior; and so are we His dear children if we believe. And look at the disciples, how imperfect they were at the time when Christ gave them the comforting assurance that He would hear their prayers. 'Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, He will give it to you. Hitherto ye have asked nothing in my name: ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full.' His disciples expected of Him that He should establish a glorious worldly kingdom and make worldly rulers of them. They quarreled among themselves, who should occupy the highest rank. And yet they were assured that the Father loved them because they loved Jesus and believed in Him. They were assured that God was well pleased with their prayers.

"Why, then, should we desist from prayer? Why should we be afraid to approach God's mercy-seat because of our sins? Let us heed the divine assurance in our gospel that God is always pleased with our prayers as long as we pray in the name of Jesus, that is, in faith, with a sincere heart, in love to Jesus, who washed away our transgressions with His precious blood on the cross of Golgotha.

PROBLEMS BEFORE LEAGUE OF NATIONS CONVENING TODAY

Greece-Italy Mix-up Complicates Original Program of Work

WHAT LEAGUE OF NATIONS ASSEMBLY PROPOSES TO DO

1—Elect Ireland as the fifty-third state member of league.
2—Launch international treaty of mutual guarantee as basis of disarmament.
3—Open for signature international protocol pledging equal commercial treatment amongst citizens of all league states.
4—Adopt America's program limiting production of opium and harmful drugs to world's actual medical and scientific needs.
5—Adopt America's program for an immediate international investigation of the white slave traffic under the direction of Abraham Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute.
6—Approve plan of collaboration between the International Health Bureau, the league's international health organization and the Pan-American Sanitary Bureau that will permit of American collaboration in the league's international health work.
7—Elect six non-permanent members of the council—presumably Chile, Argentina, China, Czecho-Slovakia, Sweden and Spain.
8—Elect a successor to the late Ruy Barbosa as judge of the league's Hague tribunal.
9—Interpret the precise meaning of article 10.
10—Take steps against slavery in Abyssinia.
11—Complete plans for international customs conference in October and international transit congress in November.
12—Launch project for permanent settlement of 1,000,000 Asia Minor refugees in Greece.
13—Open complete discussion of reparations and inter-allied debts.
14—Continue various projects toward disarmament, especially limitation of naval armaments, abolition of poison gas, prohibition of private manufacture and traffic in war material.

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

GENEVA, Sept. 3 (United Press)—With the clock-work regularity and precision of a mechanism that has had a thorough try-out for three years, the fourth annual assembly of the league of nations convened today for a four weeks session.

Delegations from all corners of the world, many of them requiring weeks to arrive, showed up with the punctuality of school boys, and took their places on the plain wooden benches of the Reformation hall, where the assembly meets.

Of the fifty-two states that are members of the league, nearly all had delegations present.

As usual, Geneva was a fairyland of flags and color in honor of the occasion. Flags of virtually every nation of the world floated from about every point of vantage to which it was possible to attach a flag.

Although the United States is not a member of the league, the American tourist travel via Geneva is at its annual heighth, and the hotels especially, which maintain the keenest competition for American patronage, were flying so many American flags that an uninformed observer would certainly have had every reason to believe that President Wilson's original idea of American entrance into the league and American domination thereof were accomplished facts.

American flags, however, were not the only American things predominating the occasion. With the American tourist travel at its height for Switzerland, the Secretariat was bombarded with endless requests for tickets of admission, despite the fact that Americans have no special grounds on which to demand admission. In fact, there were more requests by Americans for tickets than from all other nations combined.

Most of the Americans got in.

The press gallery had an American contingent of over thirty correspondents, far exceeding that of any other nation.

Furthermore, as if to contradict America's aloofness from the league, the agenda, as distributed at the opening of the session, showed no less than four questions in which the United States is already playing a leading role.

The first of these is Congressman Poster's American program reducing the world's production of opium and harmful drugs to actual medical and scientific needs.

The second is Miss Grace Abbott's resolution calling for an immediate international investigation of the present status of the white slave traffic under the direction of Abraham Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute.

The third is the plan elaborated by Surgeon General Cumming of the United States public health service that will permit of the cooperation of the United States in the league's international health work through the medium of the Pan-American Sanitary Bureau of Washington and the International Health Bureau of Paris.

The fourth question is the plan accepted by Mr. Dolbeare of the state department and Colonel Logan, the American representative on the reparations commission, for the permanent settlement of the million Greek refugees from Asia Minor via an international loan of 10,000,000 pounds, in which the United States has pledged its cooperation.

American organizations that are working for the league, such as the Peace Foundation of Boston, the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ, the Foreign Policy Association and the Committee for the League of Nations, all had delegations present.

From every point of view, America's unofficial representation and participation in the opening day of the assembly far exceeded the combined official and unofficial representation of any single member of the league.

The assembly was called to order by President Edwards of Chile, who presided over last year's session and was also president of the Pan-American congress at Santiago in March and April of this year. He will occupy the chair until a new president is elected.

The assembly will then appoint the six big commissions on each of which every state is represented, and which make the preliminary, study and recommendation of every question on the agenda. These recommendations will only come before the assembly for final action during the last two weeks of the session.

The big accomplishment of the assembly is expected to be the launching of an international pact of mutual guarantee which will serve as a basis for the reduction of armaments. This treaty, of which, Lord Robert Cecil is the chief inspirator, is the result of three years work by the league to render possible the beginning of disarmament.

The admission of Ireland as a member of the league will take place during the session. This is not expected to arouse any opposition, but will of course give anti-leaguers ground for declaring that England's votes in the league now number seven instead of six, provided the anti-leaguers can succeed in persuading anybody that Ireland would ever vote with England merely because England said so. England's other dominions already in the league are Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and India.

The assembly promises to be the most exciting one yet held, owing to the determination of the liberals, under the leadership of Lord Robert Cecil, who represents England for the first time in place of Lord Balfour, to inject into the discussion all current political questions such as reparations, inter-allied debts, the admission of Germany and the occupation of the Ruhr.

PURELY PERSONAL

Mrs. Chester Kling of 342 West Myrtle street entertained as her guests at luncheon on Friday Mrs. Charles Law of Long Beach, Mrs. William Simpson of Los Angeles and Miss Marjorie Clapp of Denver, Colo.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Vandewater of 634 North Central avenue will entertain as their guest at dinner tonight Mr. and Mrs. Orville Clark of Los Angeles. Later they will attend the American Legion wrestling and boxing program.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Draper of 534 North Kenwood street and Mrs. Draper's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Hogan, have just returned from Hermosa Beach, where they had been spending the month of August. Mr. Draper's parents are still at the beach city.

Mrs. Charles A. Parker and family, of 212 North Orange, who spent August at Balboa Beach, returned to Glendale Saturday. Mrs. Parker says it seems good to be at home again and see her old friends. She has had a good rest and resumed her work with the choir of St. Mark's on Sunday, singing the solo number at the morning service, "Return Unto Thy Rest."

Mrs. Majors and family, who occupied the Parker residence during August, have gone east. Mr. Majors is still here, but will follow them in two weeks.

Mrs. Harold Latter, of Oakland, Cal., who has been the guest for five weeks of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Lusby, of Hawthorne street, left for her home Saturday night on the Owl.

She was lavishly entertained by her many friends while here, and on Friday gave a luncheon for the women of her family at the Egyptian cafe, at which covers were laid for Mesdames C. D. Lusby, W. E. Lusby and C. R. Lusby, and herself. The afternoon following the luncheon was a social one, spent over needlework at the home of Mrs. C. D. Lusby.

The Tuesday previous Mrs. Latter was the guest of honor at a luncheon given by Mrs. Frank Parsons and her mother, Mrs. Salisbury, at which Miss A. M. Hunt and Miss Lois Hunt, Mrs. Ann Dester and Mrs. C. D. Lusby were entertained, and she was also the dinner guest during the week of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Eaton at the E. U. Emery home on North Kenwood.

The Great Gateway
of the Pacific-Southwest

LOS ANGELES HARBOR is an inestimable asset to the entire Pacific-Southwest. Last year it had commerce to the extent of 10,100,000 tons, and served fifty-nine foreign countries. It is at present second only to New York in inter-coastal trade and the monthly tonnage handled averages 2,500,000. It leads the world in the export of petroleum and the import of lumber.

The Harbor is broadening the agricultural markets of the district, and is largely responsible for the industrial expansion now taking place.

The Pacific-Southwest banking system, working in close co-operation with agricultural and industrial sections of the Pacific-Southwest, is able, through its branches in the Harbor cities, San Pedro, Long Beach and Wilmington, to watch water shipments in and out of the territory—thus affording a real service to commercial enterprises.

SALE ON AT GOOD HOUSEKEEPING SHOP

The Good Housekeeping shop is opening tomorrow morning with a list of bargain prices that will outshine anything that has been offered previously. The occasion for the special cut in prices on practically all merchandise is the six months' birthday tomorrow of the Good Housekeeping shop in Glendale. There will be five days of big values, from September 4 to 8, and anyone who desires to take advantage of the buys, but who is unable to find it convenient at the present time, can hold any article by paying a small deposit.

Among all the other bargains will be found some really attractive buys in used ranges and washing machines. Some of them have been floor samples and are like new while others have been used for demonstrations. There is one electric washer, 12 used ranges and electric vacuum cleaners in this lot.

The white kitchen tables will appeal to most housewives, particularly in this sale when they can secure them at a five or six dollar saving. The regular $12.50 tables will go for $7.65, and the $15 tables for $9.25.

Washing machines of several of the most popular and efficient makes will also come in for the discounts. These will include the Easy, Sunny Suds, Savage, Laundyette and others. And as an added inducement, an Edison electric iron will be given away with each washer. These irons are built much on the style of the Hotpoint and give splendid, quick-heating service.

Refrigerators in this sale will be reduced 25 per cent. Kitchen cabinet tables that sold for $27.50 will go for $17.90, and those that regularly retail for $30 will be in this sale for $18.50.

The gas ranges include all the late A. B. models. The $31.50 low oven type is reduced to $27.65, the $40, rust proof cabinet, $36.25, the $65 style with white enameled trimming will be $56.65, and various higher priced models are lowered in price accordingly.

With each range a set of porcelain caster cups, and a reliable automatic stove lighter will be given away free.

Truths in Epigram

Virtue alone is happiness below.—Pope.

When all is done, human life is, at the greatest and the best, like a froward child, that must be played with and humored a little to keep it quiet till it falls asleep, and then the care is over.—Temple.

An honest tale speeds best, being plainly told.—Shakespeare.

THE TWO AMERICAS

A Peruvian statesman and capitalist, Gustavo A. Pinto, is visiting California. He brings a message of friendship. Expressing belief in the Monroe doctrine, he advocates a closer bond of amity and commerce between the two Americas.

The neglect of the business men of the United States to accept the opportunities offered by their neighbors in the south never has been quite explained. The occasional expressions of dislike emanating from points below Mexico have been due to misrepresentation. But all this misapprehension might have been overcome had there been constructed a strong commercial tie, developing acquaintance and promoting understanding. There is no sound reason why in many lines American trade should not compete in South American markets with the trade of Europe. In many respects the advantage seems to rest with this country.

Twice at least the United States has aroused antagonism, but this should have vanished long ago. Once was by its attitude towards the Panama revolution, and again when the League of Nations was fathered by this country, and later repudiated. But there never has been felt towards the governments of South America the slightest hostility, and the influence of this republic has been exercised only in a protective sense.

Doubtless recognition of Mexico will be a help. American capital and enterprise will add to the prosperity of Mexico, and aid to bring about intimacy with the peoples farther south.

UNKNOWN FORTUNES

Death of a man who for a short time had been a resident of this state was followed by the report that he had left a fortune of five million dollars, but no will, and no known heirs. Inquiry at his former supposed home in the east revealed that he had not even been known there by name. The existence of such a fortune as asserted to have been held by him could not well have been without the knowledge of bankers and the assessor. Therefore the entire yarn is likely to be dismissed as a canard. Nevertheless there are immense fortunes concerning which there is almost complete lack of publicity. A few years ago a New Yorker's estate was found after his death, to be one of the most valuable in the metropolis. Yet very few had been acquainted with the man, and among his associates for the most part, he was regarded as merely well-to-do. He had been interested in many concerns, but had managed to keep his personality submerged. Yet somebody had to be aware of his affluence. The big fortune is not easily to be concealed.

Some of the vast aggregations of wealth, talked about eagerly by hopeful presumptive heirs, are in that aspect, purely chimerical. When members of a family think that by paying a fee they are to receive the commercial center of New York, or Philadelphia, or Baltimore, because some ancestor dead a hundred years, had once held title to the area, they are dreaming. Estates are not kept intact awaiting the pleasure of relatives of decedent who come along a century or two later with upturned palms.

In these days when wealth is not secreted in the deep recesses of a feudal castle, but necessarily is out in the world, participating in the world's business, it cannot be kept covered. When a stranger dies and a tale is told of his millions, the real point conveyed by the narration is that the reporter has a lively imagination.

EUROPE'S LATEST OUTBREAK

The murder of members of an Italian commission has aroused indignation to a point that easily might lead to war. It came as suddenly as an explosion in a powder mill. It was indeed, very like such explosion. All that had been needed was the spark, and unreasoning hatred supplied this.

Indications are that Greece will be forced to accept even the harsh terms named by Italy. The outrage was so senseless and so brutal that the transgressors have no shadow of excuse. They stand guilty of a heinous, and so far as the world is able to see, an unprovoked slaughter of unoffending men. Happy for Greece if it shall be able to assuage the wrath of Italians sufficiently to prevent a stroke of vengeance having behind it the full military power of Italy, which is no mean fighting nation. Moreover, the respectable powers of Europe, morally at least, will be on the side of Italy.

This outbreak of passion, indicative of the temper of southern Europe, strikes a blow at the hope of world peace as an early eventuation. Too much of the world still is not educated, is not civilized, is not decent in impulse or policy. Even as the white man was under obligation to take up his burden, so the nations that have arrived at a stage of intelligence advanced enough to see the folly of war, are having a burden thrust upon them. They cannot forever evade it. The right of people to the sort of government that may please them, is conceded. But there are limitations. They cannot be permitted to indulge in conduct that threatens habitually to deluge a continent with blood, and to throw the business of the world into confusion.

Some time, in the far distant future, there may be peace by unanimous consent. Human intelligence may find expression in this benign status. Meanwhile, if war is to be eliminated, it must be by the enforcement of the will of nations wise enough to believe in peace, just enough to want all to partake, and strong enough to tell the truculent, the greedy, the zealots of conquest, how they shall behave. The half-savage tribes of the Balkans, and the social groups of loy mentality and base designs, should not be allowed to stir up or carry on war. They need direction such as only a police organization is able to give, and they need it in exactly the the degree that slum districts need the uniformed guardian who carries a club.

POSSIBLY SIGNIFICANT

As generally known in this community, Los Angeles has a new chief of police. He is an individual of high personal and professional standing. There is a general feeling of confidence in his ability and character.

An early move of the new official was to request the revoking of the permit granted for the holding of prizefights in a certain enclosure. His reasons were that the fights were in violation of the ordinances governing such exhibitions. In addition to this, the structure housing them was condemned by him as unsafe as a fire risk. The police commission considered the request of the chief, and then declined to revoke the permit. Illegal prizefighting, in a dangerous enclosure, has been granted official sanction.

It appears that some politicians, frequently mentioned as on intimate terms with the once invisible government that now suffers somewhat from exposure, are interested in the pugilistic enterprise. They do not care who is chief so long as they are allowed to override his suggestions, and cause the arm of his authority to be stricken with partial paralysis.

This may be an indication that the chief is expected to take orders and not to give them. Former chiefs have tried to perform the duties of their office, only to find, when they landed outside, that no such course had been expected of them.

When a dry agent, or other official, is accused of accepting a bribe, there seems a singular lack of attention paid to the part of the briber. The latter is far the worse of the pair. A person not bad at heart, may be in conditions of stress such that the proffer of a bribe is a temptation hard to resist. The person who offers the bribe is bad at heart.

One California town has ordered loafers to quit loafing, or to take to the road. This state does not offer the loafer any excuse now. There is not only plenty of work, but there is clamorous demand for hands enough to do it. When conditions are such in any community that there are more workers than jobs, the case is different.

A 'DANGEROUS' DOCTRINE

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

A doctrine used to be something that a special group believed—and died for if need be—but which nobody claimed to be able to prove.

Estelle Lawton Lindsey

A doctrine was "dangerous" if you didn't happen to believe it, especially was it "dangerous" if it happened to be new.

The mental habit bred by doctrines has long stood in the way of a scientific handling of vital questions because scientific findings have by the masses been classed as doctrines and especially "dangerous" ones at that.

People who held that "God sent the babies" never questioned the right of all parents to accept all that the Lord might send. If a few starved and more lived in institutions for the feeble-minded and insane it was nobody's business.

Some years ago science got busy and compiled a few statistics, professors and physicians lectured on them and the clergy preached on the the wickedness of the lecturers and the ability of the Lord to handle his own universe.

All this comes to mind because I have just finished reading a startling article by a scientist who has recently finished an exhaustive study of feeble-mindedness in this country. His investigations have led him to advance a "dangerous" doctrine, and to advance it with emphasis.

Baldly he states that if the white race is to survive and not speedily yield its place of supremacy to one of the darker and more vigorous races the sterilization of the feeble-minded is imperative. Passing over the appalling numbers of defectives in institutions and the vastly larger number still at large and free to complicate ad libitum the problems of society we come to the part of the report that makes a sane person gasp.

"The feeble-minded are today increasing twice as fast as the normal."

In the face of such facts the Japanese question and every other public question takes second place. The one big problem immediately ahead of us is checking the spread of the racial poison that manifests as feeble-mindedness.

If this doctrine is "dangerous" let those who fear it tell us how we can go on as we are going without ultimate cataclasm. I am not writing of a belief held by any special group; I am writing the hard and fast cold facts and figures of statistics.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Ever since I have known him I have regarded Lawyer Hornaby's son, John, with a violent indifference. He was fat, to begin with, in an aggressive way that made him bulge untidily. And he was cross-grained. He never agreed with any one. And, especially, he was lazy.

"He's the most miserable pup that was ever born into the Hornaby family," his father would roar. Son John would grin.

Today Son John Hornaby is a different person. I do not know what caused the change, but I know now it was effected, for Son John told me. He said he made himself over by getting the habit of promptness.

"A year ago," said Johnny Hornaby—that's what we call him nowadays—"when it was suggested that I do something I'd reply: 'Sure. I will—in a minute.' "

"Sometimes I did. More often I sat sprawled out in my chair, vest open, knees wide apart, as lifeless as a lump of mud."

He determined to make a move, at least, whenever one was hinted at. If his mother said that it looked like rain, he rose, went to the window, and looked out. If he thought of something he should do, he rose. He might do it or not. The point is that he always rose.

"It's easy to start when you're on your feet," he said. "But when you're sitting down inertia claims you for its own."

Whether it is the continued rising—or the activity which followed the abandonment of the chair—Johnny Hornaby is now slim and peppy. The plan seems worth trying. After all, the only created being who accomplishes anything useful in a sitting posture is the humble hen.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

A refreshing and reassuring silence comes from Washington.

Indicating that President Coolidge is doing more thinking than talking.

JAMES W. FOLEY

Which is an agreeable thing for that part of the country that wants to see it run along the lines of law, order and the constitution.

* * *

A thinker is a good statesman.

The man who thinks first.

Acts next.

And talks last.

And the man who thinks sanely and acts courageously needs do very little talking.

* * *

Naturally the country wants to be informed.

We are that kind of a people.

We want to be informed about everything.

Whether we make any use of the information or not.

We want to know about the public debt, and the public budget, and the public income and the public outgo and a hundred and one things.

And then most of us forget about it.

* * *

Many of the statesmen we have today are of the vocalizing kind.

And in many instances their vocal chords and their brains are not in any degree of correlation.

They set themselves going and forget to stop the machine.

* * *

The noisy ones of the country's statesmen want everything done by legislation.

They want wheat put up and gasoline put down.

They want railroads regulated and this thing done and that thing done.

Congress they feel can do it all.

Merely by mandate.

* * *

They want interference or intervention in European affairs, but they do not know how the intervention should come about.

They do not know whether to supply more money or more advisers.

But they want something done.

* * *

So they talk about it.

Talk long and loudly.

Wild and irresponsible demagogues shouting for most anything to get themselves kept in office.

The country has more speeches than it can assimilate.

And when they are assimilated they have little in the way of nourishment.

* * *

The country is being talked into a mild state of insanity.

The tin horn politician would have the nation legislate on every possible fool subject.

Asking us to believe that prosperity can come by mandate.

* * *

Prosperity can no more come by mandate than a thunder storm can come by mandate.

The time of making things by fiat passed millions of years ago.

So the silence that comes from Washington is reassuring.

The President is thinking and not talking.

And he is doing this while most of the claptrappers are talking without thinking.

* * *

This country needs a lot of thrift, a lot of economy, a lot of hard work and a little common sense.

Songs of the Poets

'Twas Ever Thus (After Moore)—By H. M. Leigh

I never reared a young gazelle,
(Because you see, I never tried);
But had it known and loved me well,
No doubt the creature would have died.
My rich and age-ed Uncle John
Has known me long and loves me well
But still persists in living on—
I would he were a young gazelle.

I never loved a tree or flower,
But, if I had, I beg to say
The blight, the wind, the sun, or shower
Would soon have withered it away.
I've dearly loved my Uncle John,
From childhood to the present hour,
And yet he will go living on—
I would he were a tree or flower.

THE MEANING OF GARDENS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE great Bacon wrote an essay "Of Gardens," which, by the way, was rather commonplace and showed that Homer nods. There have been several learned men in China and Japan who have written of Gardens, but most of this sort of literature that I have seen has been curious and pedantic.

It has always seemed, however, that there is behind every garden an idea. Everything in it is in some way the clothing or expression of the soul that made it.

After wandering through many gardens, particularly in the Far East where gardening is a seriously practiced art, I have noted the following features and have guessed at their significance.

1. The Tree. This stands for all vegetation, shrubbery and greenery. The tree is a symbol of the vitality of Nature, the force of its growth. The early Teutonic peoples worshipped trees, and for each man a tree was selected which grew with his growth and was cut down and formed his coffin at his death. The Tree means the mothering of Nature; from it comes the food, shelter, clothing and housing of man.

2. The Water. The pool or still water is the Eye of the landscape. It makes the earth seem alive, just as man seems awake when his eye opens. Still water is a sign of perfection, the one thing that nature makes perfectly smooth and even. The running brook is the voice of the earth; it babbles on and tattles all the secrets of the universe to those who can understand.

3. The Stone. The great rock or natural stone is particularly fancied in all Far East gardens. "Huge rocks are transported from great distances — rocks honeycombed by the beating of ocean waves; rocks smelted into quaint forms by the furnaces of volcanoes; rocks hollowed and gnarled by the teeth of torrents; petrifactions from the depths of inland seas, and richly tinted masses from mineral districts —all these are sought for and treasured." The Stone represents that fixity which this fluctuating life craves, that strength and immutability of which we dream.

4. The Way. There are three forms of the Way, the Gate, the Bridge and the Path.

Much is made of the Gate in all Eastern gardens and grounds. The Gate stands for the sanctity of property, for the right which a man has to his own, which implies the right of keeping other people out.

The meaning of Bridges is obvious. There is always a way to surmount any difficulty. The art and labor of man can overcome any obstacle of Nature. The Bridge is the typical triumph of the human spirit over the opposition of natural forces.

The Path must be in every garden. It is never straight, but always winding, picturing that strange and devious way in which the progress of each life takes its direction. The beginning we know and the end we know, but the Path between is strange and winding.

5. The Lantern. In every Eastern garden there is a lantern. Often this is of massive stone in the top of which is a little window wherein a candle may be set. Sometimes it is of metal. The object of the Lantern is not to give light to illuminate the landscape, but to be a point of light to be looked at for itself. Shakespeare caught the spiritual significance of the little light ray in a great darkness:

"How far that little candle sheds its beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world!"

In some such manner the Soul may be fed by the Garden.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

NEGRO ACHIEVEMENTS

[New York Evening Post]

The Spingarn Medal for the most distinguished achievement by an American of African descent went to Dr. George Washington Carver of Tuskegee Institute for services in agricultural chemistry which would distinguish any white scientist. He has developed 165 by-products of the peanut and 115 of the sweet potato; discovered values in a neglected berry, and devised means of using okra fibre in paper, rope, matting and carpet. It is a constant complaint of negroes that crimes by colored folk are always reported, and frequently exaggerated, with special emphasis on the criminal's race, while negro contributions to civilization are overlooked. The commission which investigated the Chicago race riots found that the Chicago newspapers were decidedly at fault in this regard.

In the long run highly distinguished service by a negro receives full public recognition. The achievements of Booker Washington in education, of Du Bois and Braithwaite in literature, of Bert Williams on the stage, or Harry Burleigh as a composer, are appreciated at their full value.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The people of this country are definitely opposed to the use of narcotics. They know the use of them to be ruinous to the individual and harmful to society. They are aware that the drug addict represents total loss, and that the habitual "fiend" is a criminal. They have been called upon to fight the evil and they are responding. It is fair that they should be informed on certain points.

"HENRY JAMES"

They would be glad to know to what extent the concerted movement is a reform, and to what extent a graft. They have been told that for collecting money for what has all the seeming of a righteous war, a collector is getting 40 per cent. If this is the case his arraignment on a charge of false pretenses or something equally serious, would appear to be the next logical move.

Drug addiction spreads in the manner of a disease. Doctors are blamed for it sometimes, but generally by the addict who is seeking to make excuses for himself. The victim of the drug habit takes to the practice deliberately, and with full knowledge of the consequences. He soon becomes a moral, mental and physical wreck, the mere shell of a man. Whether the attempt to save him individually is worth while is a serious question. As a matter of fact, the possibility of cure is doubtful, and to be quite frank about it, the sooner he dies and ceases to cumber the earth, he better.

The way to check the use of drugs is to cut off the supply. The way to cut it off is to make the vending of illicit drugs punishable by life imprisonment.

Syndicate articles by Angelo Patri on the subject "Our Children" are widely published, and many of them have a distinct value. One that recently appeared was wholly without this quality. Perhaps an instance of Homer nodding.

The article in question bore the sub-title "Making Him Mind." The essence of it was that he (any child) should not be made to mind; on the contrary that his mental processes should be permitted to progress without parental guidance or suggestion. It is an enlargement of the old sophistry; "Never say don't to a child." It is foolish to the point of absurdity.

The idea of permitting the baby to play with matches on the theory that it will receive the necessary lesson when the house burns down is grotesque. How it could be advanced by an educator, or for an instant sponsored by a father or mother, is beyond conception.

Boring holes in the leg of the piano is a favored form of relaxation for the male infant. But mother must not stop him, and father must not spank him. No, indeed. The offender is to acquire knowledge by seeing the mutilated piano.

A parent has no more right to neglect the moral training of a child than to neglect to provide it with food. The little one, primarily, has no moral sense. This has to be inculcated. It may be inculcated without allowing the youngster to try the razor on the cat, or pound the mirror with a hammer.

It is possible that ultimately a sense of right and wrong might arise, but no such sense is instinctive. Meanwhile the child, left to select its own course untrammeled, is as likely to select one leading to the penitentiary as elsewhere.

If a child may be reasoned with, well and good. If reasoning makes no appeal to its understanding, there remains recourse to discipline, not necessarily to violence. To receive such discipline or not to receive it, may be the difference between growing to useful citizenship and growing up to be hanged.

There is every indication that Chief Vollmer of Los Angeles intends to clean up the town, which was his purpose in accepting the job.

If he persists in the Quixotic notion, the general belief is that he will last about six weeks. The former invisible government, newly rendered visible, does not want the town cleaned up.

Brisbane chortles over the spectacle of Americans bragging about the feat of the Leviathan which is a German-built boat. Perhaps the fact that in reconditioning it, this country spent $8,500,000 tended to Americanize it to a certain extent.

The Leviathan has been through the melting pot.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

SERMONS TO CHILDREN

Ministers ought to be trained to preach sermons to children. I don't believe they have been or more of them would preach better ones to children than they do.

The minister ought to preach to the children so that they learn that he speaks for the church and speaks with the voice of authority. The children cannot get his authority at all because he speaks in a tongue they do not understand.

It isn't any good to make children fill spaces in pewss while the man in the pulpit talks to the most intellectual of his audience. My experience tells me that is what he does. Being a highly trained intellect in himself he is likely to assume the same of his listeners and soar away.

Many of the adults are bored stiff and the children feel as though they were bombarded with hard words. They feel aggrieved that they are being held prisoners, tied to the stake as it were, while these missiles are hurled at their helpless heads.

Yet the children should have their weekly sermon. I remember one that a wise old man preached to his children. He said, "I want all you youngsters in church next Sunday morning at half past nine. I've a story to tell you."

We were there. First because he had authority and our parents had a little, too. We looked up expectantly at him and he smiled down at us. Together we said the simple office of the day and then he said:

"It's a fairy tale I'm telling you and I want you to listen to it so you can tell it to your fathers and mothers. They'll like it as much as you.

"There was once a little red dwarf that lived in a cave on the side of a hill. 'Twas a beautiful cave in the side of the hill where the greatest of all giants lived. The giant, you understand, lived at the top of the hill and the dwarf close to the bottom. And the giant was afraid of the dwarf, be it known!

"The things that dwarf could do!

"He was bright red himself, but he never came outside the doors of his cave. Not he.

"He sent out his soldiers to do whatever he willed. My, they were the boys! They could burn down a town while you blessed yourself, they were so quick and so wicked when they were set to it. The dwarf, you see, could be very wicked when he chose and very, very good when he chose, too.

"But good and bad he kept the giant at the top of the hill in a terrible bother. He had to keep at it day and night to get ahead of the little dwarf.

"For the worst thing about it all was that the dwarf's army was invisible. Not a hair of them could you ever see, and my, the mischief or the good works they could do! Just as the giant willed."

Have I said enough to tell you that the good man was teaching us the use and the power of our tongues? I went home that day and stuck out my tongue and looked hard at it. For the first time in my life I knew I had it and I was afraid of what I might do with it. Not a bad sermon, was it? I still hear it.

Two hunters in the North Carolina woods has chased a wildcat to a clearing and were terrified to see the beast jump into a window or a cabin from which the sound of a woman's voice had just been heard. On the porch, rocking comfortably and apparently unperturbed, sat friend husband.

"For heaven's sake, is your wife in there?" screamed one of the hunters.

"Yeah."

"Good Lord, man, get busy! A wildcat just jumped in the window."

"Yeah? Well, let him get out the best way he can. I got no use for the pesky critters and danged if I'm going to help him."—Judge.

CHRIST'S PRESENCE IS SERMON TOPIC

"The Abiding Presence of Christ" was the subject by Dr. Funk, of the First Lutheran church, at the hall of the Chamber of Commerce building Sunday morning. The context is one of the most comforting portions of the Bible, and the words "abide" and "continue" occur in it not less than a dozen times. And yet much depends upon the attitude of the individual as to whether an assurance of the abiding presence of Christ is comforting or not. If a man has no intention of doing what is right, and has no desire to be honest and upright in his dealings with men, the idea of an All-seeing Eye ever present is not very comforting. No, such a person would be an unwelcome guest.

But, on the other hand, to him who loves righteousness there is a great joy in being aware of the presence of one who is a discerner of the inmost thoughts. No, people who do not believe in God do not want to believe in the doctrine of the abiding presence of Christ, for they generally live as if there were no God to call them into judgment. The soul in Christ has nothing to fear; "yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me."

So, while it is true that there is great joy and comfort in the abiding presence of Christ, the benefits are assured only to those who strive to do His will. He is present, not as a tyrant or a task-master, but as a friend.

When Napoleon was advancing to the pyramids with his army he found the enemy prepared for the attack. Indeed, so great was the host of the enemy that the great commander wavered for an instant. But the eagle eye of Napoleon caught the weak spot in the opposing forces. "Soldiers, forty centuries are watching you from yonder pyramids; forward by the right flank!" It was a master stroke to inspire to action; in a single sentence to exalt these soldiers by filling them with a desire to aspire to noble and lofty achievement. All this was accomplished through the presence of a leader who was master of the situation, who was able to discern and seize the opportunity.

JAYHAWKERS WILL HAVE A JOLLY PICNIC REUNION

All who ever lived in Kansas are called to meet for a great picnic reunion, all day Saturday, September 8, in Sycamore grove park, Los Angeles. Come as early as you can and spend the day with friends. There will be county registers and headquarters so all may find the old neighbors even with ten thousand present.

There will be a brief program opening about 2 with songs, short talks, roll call. The main purpose will be to have a good time and to let the people do the talking. All the tourists and visitors from the old home state will be made welcome and may meet thousands of old-time friends. Bring your basket well filled. Coffee will be served free to all who buy the souvenir badges. Each one who learns of this is asked to pass the word along. Further information may be had of C. H. Parsons, Secretary of the Federation of State Societies, office in the Continental National bank, Main and Ninth streets, phone 10261, where the great Kansas register may be seen.

AMBITIOUS AIREDALE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30 (United Press).—A record-sized litter of pups was born here to a blooded airedale, when she gave birth to nine sons and five daughters. The owners now face the problem of naming the numerous progeny.

BLAME POOR DISTRIBUTION FOR FOOD CRISIS

[By Associated Press]

HAMBURG, Sept. 3.—Germany's collapsing currency and the resultant food shortages are producing a situation wholly unlike that in Russia two years ago when the ruble first descended to the point where one dollar purchased a million rubles.

Russians were in the throes of a famine caused by drought in the wheat raising districts. And their railway system was in need of repair and utterly disorganized by labor troubles and sabotage.

Millions of persons were actually starving. Many of them were in flight from the burned-out districts, most of these without the means of buying food even where it was available.

In Germany today the dislocated population is not large and the families which have been deported from the Ruhr are for the most part provided with some paper money by the government.

The Russian government, just previous to the decline of the ruble to the million point, had changed its economic policy and discontinued the plan whereby it had sought to prove money worthless and useless by promising workmen actual food and clothing and rent and light and heat in exchange for their work. Consequently Russians suddenly found themselves without food rations and without money as well, as unemployment was widespread.

The food troubles in Germany are largely the result of imperfect distribution. There is food in Germany, but the economic crisis and the unwillingness of dealers to sell it for paper money which descends in value by leaps and bounds are holding the food out of the market. Food riots in cities and threats of confiscation by communists have discouraged the farmers and market gardeners from carrying their products to centers liable to disorder.

It is the old problem of the city against the country, the peasant against the industrial laborer. The farmers are in better condition in Germany than any other class, and they are holding their products for payment in something more stable than paper marks. They are engaging in barter and exchange, as is common now in Russia. Dealers are particularly unwilling to let go of any products which are imported, as they cannot raise sufficient gold to replace them. Unless they are paid in gold or its equivalent, wholesalers and retailers alike prefer to hold their rice and coffee and other staple food products which are imported.

But Germany is accustomed to going without real coffee. Even the small vegetable gardens about Berlin nearly all raise a small patch of rye, which is roasted and made into a coffee substitute for the family which must save every possible mark. It is potatoes which, after bread, are the most important article of diet with the average Germany family. The lateness of the season and the excessive rainfall have contributed to the potato shortage which is becoming very acute and raising must disturbance.

Women who cannot buy potatoes in the markets are in despair. That represents a loss of the foundation of the average German family's meal. Meat prices have been prohibitive for families in modest circumstances. But until recently potatoes were within reach. Butter, butter substitutes and all sorts of fats are also extremely scarce in the public markets and are held at a price beyond most purses. But practically all sorts of foodstuffs are available in Germany if the purchaser is willing to meet the terms of the dealer, and there is adequate transportation to handle them. Distribution is unsatisfactory because of the crash in the currency and threatened political troubles.

There is nothing whatever chicken-hearted about the game rooster.

O. E. VON OVEN HAS LIVELY TIME

THE GIFT THOUGHT IS SUNDAY TOPIC

At the Glendale Presbyterian church yesterday morning the assistant pastor, Rev. Louis Tinning, used the incident of Mary annointing the feet of Christ as the subject of his sermon. The text was taken from John 12:3.

"The pouring forth of the ointment was pleasing to Christ, but it called forth criticism from others and even from the disciples. Christ knew Mary's spirit in doing this deed of love. Others might be deceived, but not the Master. He knew that Mary had given freely and willingly and he had only commendation for this choice expression of her love.

"Christ did not measure the gift of Mary by the best of others. Mary and Martha were very unlike and neither could be a standard for the other. In great love, Mary had given the best she had. When we bring gifts to Christ, He will consider out motives and our ability to give. Whatever others may say, there will be no censure from Him if we give in true love.

"Our best of today is not to be measured by our best of other days. In this home Lazarus had been restored to life. There was a new joy there which these sisters had never known before. Doubtless Mary had given generously on former occasions, but greater blessings in our lives call for larger expression of our love. Former standards are too low. We gather richer experiences and wider opportunities open before us as life goes on. Out of great blessing we will bring our Savior our choicest gifts. We will leave the old standards behind and reach forth for a more adequate expression of our love to Christ.

"Our best should aim at the highest goal possible. Mary's gift might have been used for some other worthy purpose. But she could not have bestowed it more worthily and adequately than she did. As a lofty theme inspires the poet or artist, so our love of the Christ will inspire us to lay our best at His feet.

"Our best, whether it be in thinking, giving or living, transforms our whole surroundings. 'The house was filled with the odor of the ointment.' She ministered to Christ, but her love could not be confined to Him alone. In serving Him she served others. The home, the church, the community, are better and holier when we do our best for Christ.

"Our best will be criticized. Men will criticize the giver, the gift and even go to the length of criticizing the object of the giving. It is so easy for men to see faults, and tongues are seldom still. Why did we not give more, or differently, or to a nobler end? Shall we cease giving because our best does not satisfy men? God forbid. While Christ loves we will give our best to Him.

"Then too, the Savior will take our good and make it better. Stinging words of criticism hurt deeply, but Christ spoke tenderly and said that wherever this gospel would be preached, this woman's loving deed would always be told as 'a memorial of her.' How much He can do with our little! Five loaves and two small fishes satisfied the hungering multitude. He will take our little, if it be given in love, and the angels in heaven will behold in loving wonder what it accomplishes with His blessing."

AWAY

It's very still about the house
I think that I could hear a mouse
Creep down the stair.
There's not the slamming of a door,
No stamping feet upon the floor,
Or anywhere.

I turn the pages of my book
And here and there about I look,
And then read on.
There is no shouting there outside,
No lusty youngster yelling "slide,"
All, all are gone.

No youngsters down the banister
Come riding with a whoop and stir
And with a slide
Go scampering across the floor
And like a flash out through the door
To play outside.

There is no call o'er acres spread:
"Ma! can I have some gingerbread?"
Through the back door.
Nor then the tramp of dusty feet
Into the pantry for some sweet,
And then for more.

They're in the country for a stay,
For six whole weeks they'll be away.
I never knew,
In all my life how much of noise
Can be made by a pair of boys—
And quiet too!

'MAN NEXT DOOR' AT GLENDALE THEATRE

Those men who settled the West came from strange environments and few ever knew the secrets in the heart of the careless-living cowmen who roamed the great ranges. Occasionally one hears the story of one of these pioneer fortune hunters who were less careless concerning fortunes and more eager to live lives of forgetfulness. It is for sketching of such characters that Emerson Hough, the author of "The Man Next Door," which is at the Glendale theatre, is famous.

Victor Schertzinger, the producer of "The Man Next Door" for Vitagraph, shot the ranch scenes at Palo Verde ranch in Southern California. Schertzinger is a musician of note and an artist at the piano. Members of the company had asked the director to play for them one night, and while Schertzinger played the men from the bunkhouse gathered around outside the windows of the huge living room.

Director Schertzinger had played a number of simple airs and had left the piano, when a bent and grizzled old cowman, with hat in hand, entered the door timidly.

"Mister, will you play something for me?" he asked.

Schertzinger imagined the old cowpuncher would ask for some old-fashioned ballad, and he readily assented. Imagine his surprise when the cowman requested Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata. The director played the selection and it was not until the company was leaving the ranch that he learned the story of the old ranch rider. The owner of the Palo Verde ranch told the story.

TRANSFERS

Do you know Glendale Inter-Urban Express

—That we are the oldest authorized freight and express carrier between Glendale and Los Angeles.

—That we deliver at your door quicker than any other carrier.

—That we have four trucks operating daily, with an investment of $13,000.

—That we are a Glendale concern, and not a Los Angeles transfer company.

—THEREFORE, we are deserving of your patronage.

—That we are equipped to handle any kind of hauling—both local and long distance.

—That we have a 14-passenger bus—just the thing for picnic parties.
